

A.M.Moura Advogados opens new law firm

A.M.Moura Advogados inaugurates a new office, continuing to provide clients with technically excellent work, directed at supplying each with a solution appropriate to the specific situation. Adelaide Moura is the lawyer who takes on the new office.

With a career that dates back to 1990, A.M.Moura Advogados's new office intends to consolidate its market position by combining innovation and experience. With a highly motivated team of lawyers and a very special working method that allows the creation of solid ties with the clients by rendering quality services and efficiency focused on specific solutions adequate to each client.

The firm represents Portuguese and multinational entities whose main business areas include food and beverage, energy, pharmaceuticals, health products and biotechnology, tourism and leisure, real estate and construction, financial institutions, logistics and transport, retail and consumption, insurance, public sector and technology, media and telecommunication, among others.

In every market in which it operates, A.M.Moura Advogados focuses on choosing the best solution for each client, determining the one best suited to each phase of the cycle, seeking the best strategy to provide the most appropriate response. Adelaide Moura says that "with the new office we intend to build up a project that is truly forward-looking, one that wants to innovate in those areas in which it operates, in the services it provides and in the way they are provided"

More than 20 years' experience and knowledge in law practice

Adelaide Moura's knowledge and experience are a real asset for the establishment of the new office in Lisbon, located at Rua da Escola Politécnica.

Adelaide Moura began her professional calling over 20 years ago, having furthered her career with multinational, PricewaterhouseCoopers, and she was the first woman to be appointed tax partner in Southern Europe. At the same time she always practised law through firms forming part of the international lawyer networks of that organisation.

ADVOGADOS, RL

In 2005, as a result of constraints imposed by laws relating to the independence of audit firms (Sarbanes Oxley Act), she left PricewaterhouseCoopers and began practising law under the name A.M.Moura on a completely independent basis.

In 2007, the firm changed its name to A.M.Moura, Albergaria Silva e Associados, which she left with the entire team in May this year.

With an enterprising and highly skilled team, the working methods of the A.M.Moura Advogados office, now inaugurated, are strongly influenced by the culture gained at multinational for which she worked, allowing the establishment of solid links with clients. Adelaide Moura says "The mission of this law firm is focused on the relationship of trust, on sharing the client's vision so that, together, we may follow a solution-oriented path".
